Vida Scott Appointed Head of Communications.

Network Ten today announced the appointment of Vida Scott as Head of Communications, effective 2 July.

In her new role, Ms Scott will be responsible for the company's external corporate communications, internal communications, and trade marketing. She will report to Network Ten Chief Operating Officer, Annabelle Herd.

Ms Herd said: "I am delighted to welcome Vida to the Ten team. With her experience across a range of corporate affairs and communications roles, and her obvious passion for television and media, Vida will be a strong asset to the business."

Ms Scott said: "It's a great time to be joining Network Ten. The media industry plays an important role for all Australians and Ten is a key part of that landscape. There are a lot of exciting things happening at the company and I'm looking forward to working with the team to shape Ten's future."

Ms Scott has broad media industry experience, having held a number of corporate communications and marketing roles at News Corp Australia and APN News & Media (now HT&E). In March 2017, she joined Westpac Group as Senior Communications Manager working across the company's group business units.

Ms Scott started her career at Red Agency, where she worked across Fairfax Media and its associated brands.
